Foreword.

WHAT a faded rose means to a lover, what a picture means to a far-off friend, what a memory of happy days means to a sad heart, that is what this book means to us. A Wesleyan girl, no matter where she may be or how many years have passed since she was a school girl beneath the shadow of the old tower, will understand; but to the casual reader we make our plea: deal gently with the imperfections you find within these pages, and remember that we are only amateurs at this book game, recording something so bright and dear that we cannot let one smallest memory slip us, or one tiny recollection fade with the passing of many years.

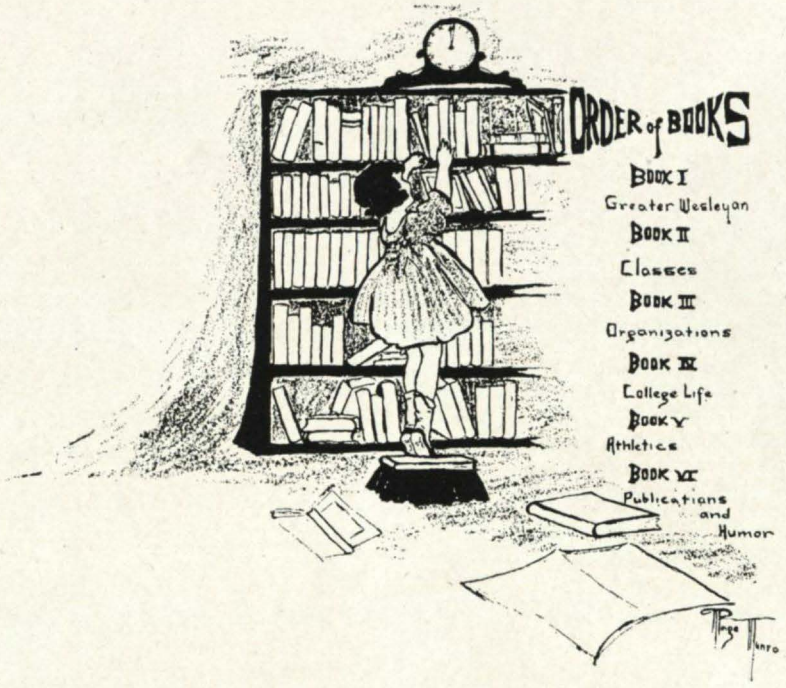

To Our Fathers

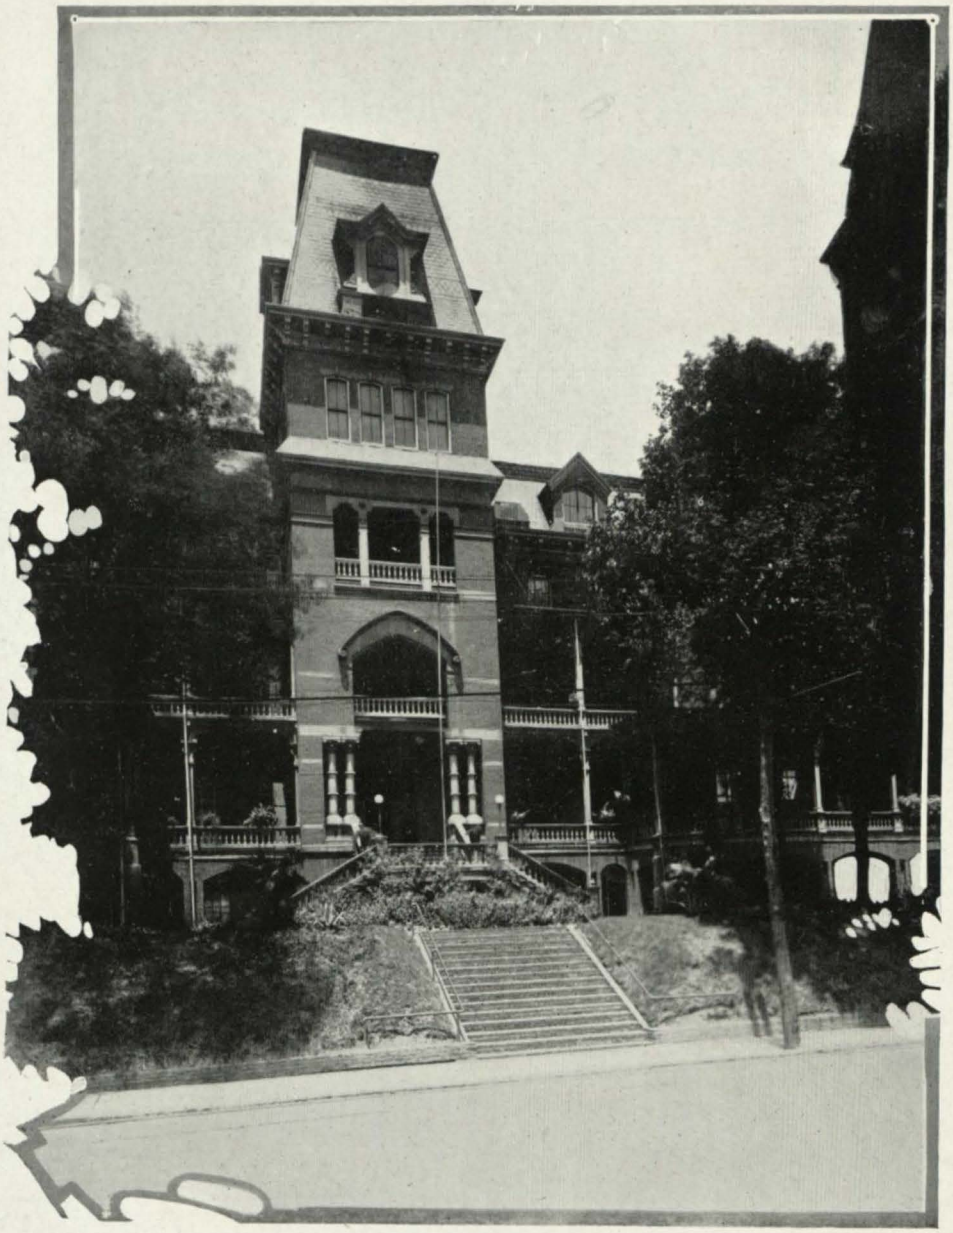

I walked in the cool of the night
And thought of the value of things,
Of what would endure through the years,
Time-supreme, like the tombs of the kings.

The moon hid her face 'neath a cloud,
The stars' light was dim from afar,
But, beacon-like, shone from the porch
The glow of my father's cigar.

And why, pondered I, do they give
Father Time just the name that they do?
Because he's the symbol of things
Everlasting and real and true?

And no one was there to reply,
Save an owl and that one gleam of red,
But the Solomon-sage of the pines
Blinked, and then nodded his head.

Alma Mater

Hail Wesleyan, thou emblem of all that is grand—
The noblest, the grandest, in all our fair land!
Thine ideals are honored—thy name always blest—
A fountain of knowledge, the oldest and best.

A star in the dark is thy glorious past;
Forever and ever thy glory shall last.
Upholding thy ideals, thy daughters will be
True, faithful, and loyal, dear Wesleyan, to thee!

Book I

GREATER WESLEYAN

Wesleyan

I watch thy towers 'gainst the sunset sky,
And put the image in my heart to keep;
In days to come, when I am far from thee,
I'll take it out and find contentment there.

The days I've spent within thy gracious walls
Have woven fast a spell about my soul,
Compounded half of days I never saw,
And I can fancy that before my eyes
There stand dim shades who once thy daughters were.
I love thee for thy past, O Wesleyan!

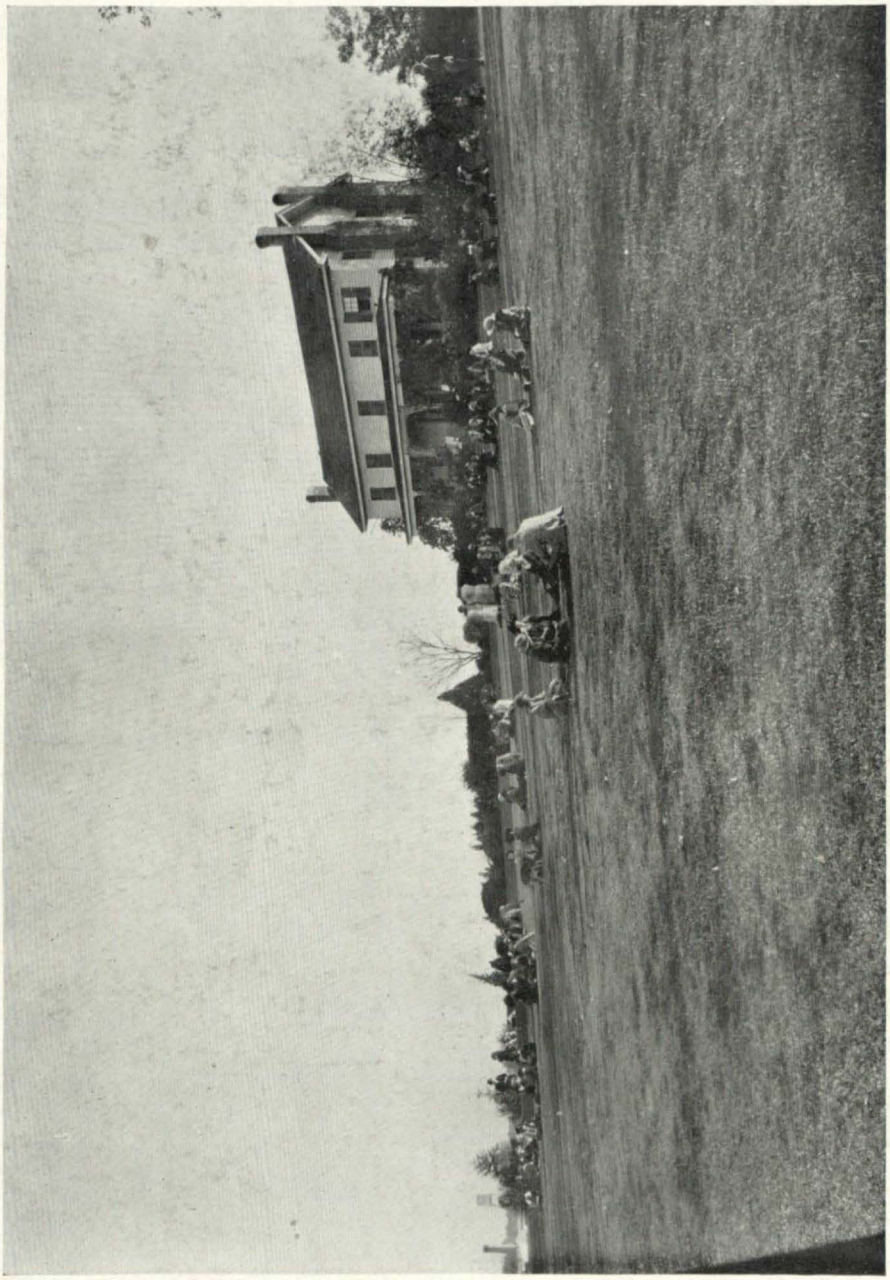

And now come knocking gaily at my heart
Another group; they laugh and bid me come
And live again my happy college days
With them, within thy kindly shelt'ring walls.
Thy present holds thee to me, Wesleyan,
And I would keep thee as I've known thee here!

But soft! a vision comes and beckons me—
And now I see another Wesleyan!
A golden haze of mist half shrouds its spires;
I catch a glimpse of them through many trees.
Thy future makes me wish that I could pass
My college days at greater Wesleyan!

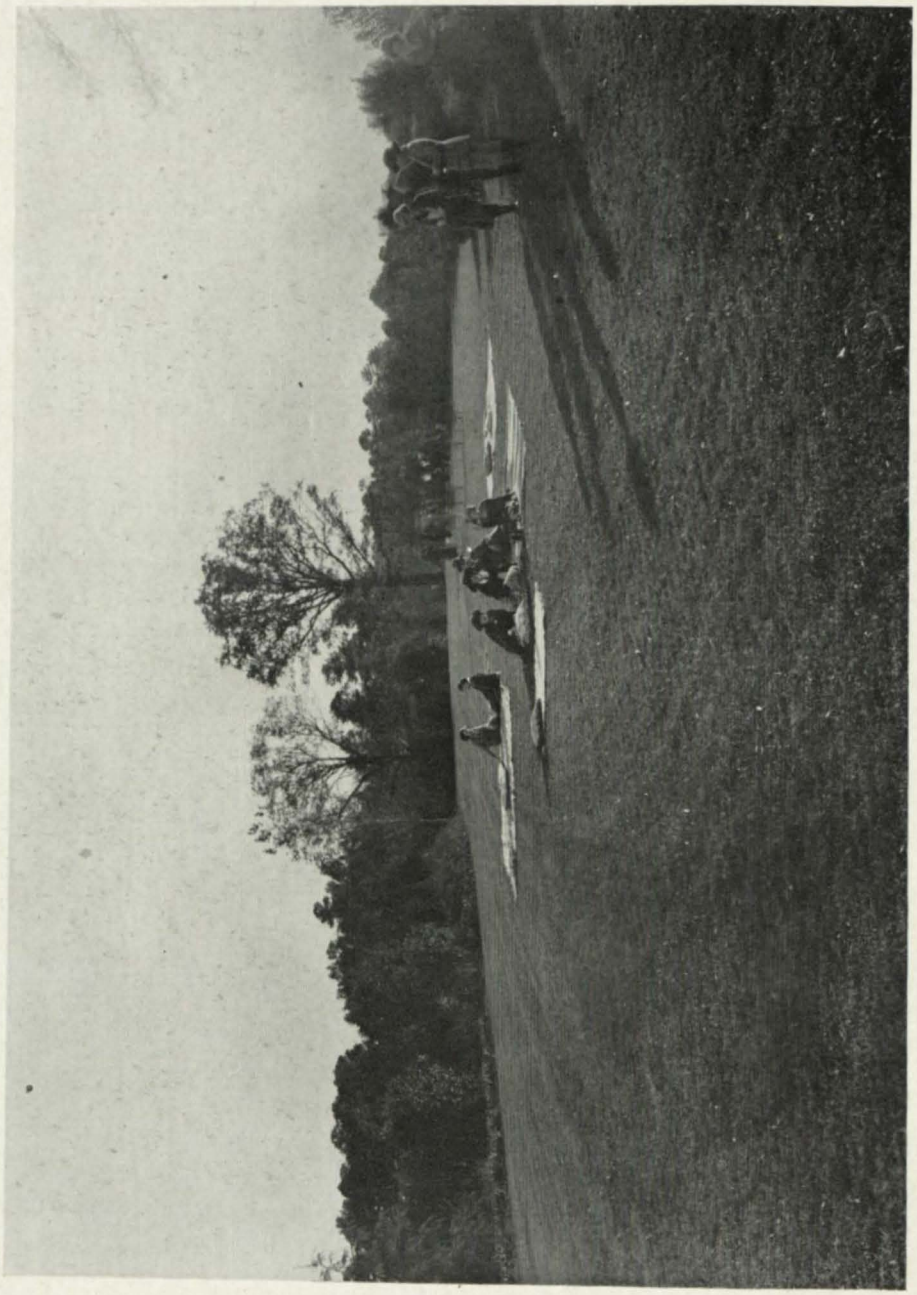

I watch thy towers 'gainst the sunset sky,
And put the image in my heart to keep;
In days to come when I am far from thee,
I'll take it out and find contentment there.

The Spirit of Wesleyan

WELL, yes, for one family it does seem that there are a good many of us, but I wouldn't have it any other way, would you? I rather like large families, and there are just enough of us to keep this the jolliest as well as the oldest family in all the world!

Can you ever forget how we were received when we first came into the family, and climbed up the old stone steps, struggling desperately to keep our numerous articles of baggage together, and even more desperately to keep our falling spirits together? It was just as if they said to us, "Come into the fire, little sister! We have been waiting for you!"

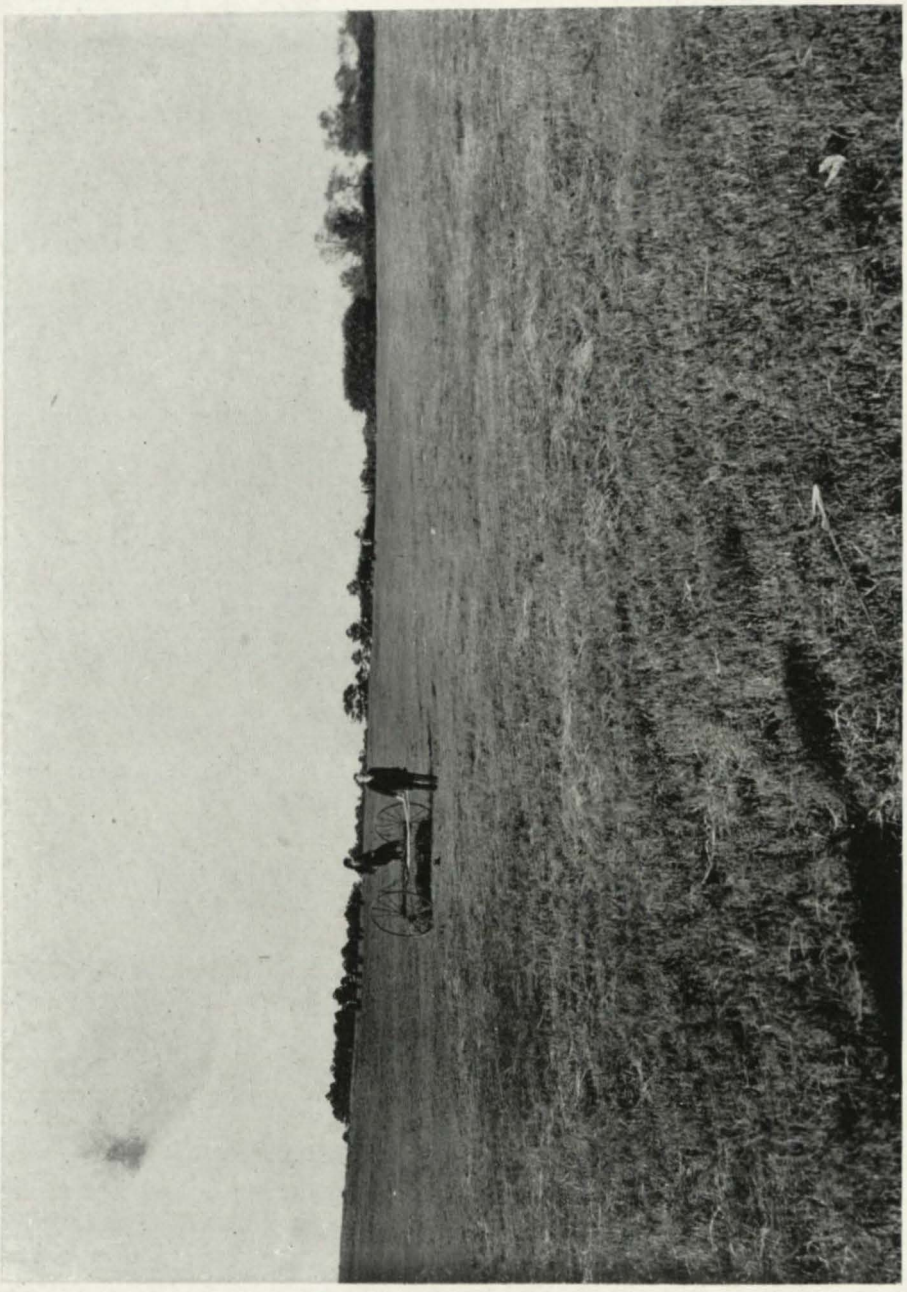

Oh, of course we had heard long before about the wonders and advantages of this Wesleyan. We knew that it was the very oldest woman's college in the world, that it was a member of the Southern Association of Colleges, and that its future promised to surpass even the wildest dreams of its loyal alumnæ. But we've learned, since we became a part of the family, that a Wesleyan girl is not thinking of these things when she declares:

"There's just not another college like ours anywhere!"

We have discovered, too, that neither its treasured traditions nor its standing among colleges of the South had anything to do with that other adjective that somebody added, back in the past, to the sum of its merits—the best! The oldest college—and the best!

It was the spirit of Wesleyan which prompted that, and, deeply as you and I feel it, we find it almost an impossibility to say just what makes it.

Perhaps that first year, with its delightful little-sistery feeling, had the most to do with it. What a happy-hearted, blundering bunch we were! How we were teased by the sophomores, petted by the juniors, and forgiven by everybody else for an endless number of mistakes, because we didn't know any better! How we could almost feel ourselves growing in importance on Thanksgiving Day, when we swung our new banner aloft with the others on the basketball field and experienced the first real sensations of class spirit! With what wide-eyed amazement at the unheard-of privileges of juniors and seniors we watched the junior prom from the roof of third floor main, and gazed from our far corner in the dining room upon the Rotary banquet! What a queer feeling of thankfulness was brought to us, as we watched our older sisters go out into the world at commencement, by the realization that there were other years at the oldest and best in store for us! And with what a traditional sense of our own greatness did we come back in the fall—sophomores!

Perhaps it isn't that at all. Perhaps the secret of Wesleyan's spirit lies in the wide-awakeness of everyone of us. We're a hustling family, and somehow we've managed to be in the midst of everything without being in each other's way. The score of a Thanksgiving game is every bit as important to you as it is to the captains of the respective teams, even though you are only a very hoarse "rooter" on the back row. The Glee Club's success thrills me just as much as if I had been the chief member who had helped to make it. There is not the least doubt in either of our minds that our Student Government Association is the best that could possibly be found or that there could ever be a task too difficult for our Y. W. C. A. to perform! We are, everyone of us, interested in everything that happens at the oldest and best, and we have found that it keeps us all busy most of the time making things happen!

And then, you may say what you will, there's a whisper of long ago days in the midst of present joys that we would not forget if we could. All the old-fashioned towers and time-worn buildings breathe a memory of the days of hoop-skirts and leg o' mutton sleeves so real that we can almost clasp hands with those sisters of ours from the days when our mothers and their mothers were young! Somehow we have never felt quite so close to the little white-haired lady whom we call "grandmother" as on that day when we discovered her maiden name cut deep in the desk where we study. The knowledge that the first sorority in the world was founded here more than a half a century ago adds to the charm that enfolds every one of us Wesleyan girls. Somehow the bell in the old tower rings with a new note when we think that Harry Stillwell Edwards listened for it years ago, and married one of the very girls who rushed to classes at its summons. The shadowy halls give us a feeling of reverence as though we stood on holy ground when we remember that the poet whose "Marshes of Glynn" and "My Springs" have made the world recognize him as America's greatest poet wooed here the girl who afterwards became his wife. Somehow there is always a strange tenderness in our hearts when we stop in the midst of our busiest day to inquire after the health of Uncle Johnson, that faithful servant of all the "mistisses", and hear him say, as he has said "for nigh onto forty year" now: "Ma health am in a state ob distication mos' compoun' procific, thankee, mistis!"

Somehow, to those of us who have felt the faint suggestion of yesterday that hovers over our campus, there comes a touch of sadness at the fear that perhaps this may be forgotten in the splendor of a newer and better campus. But then comes the reassuring thought that a past like the one the mother of colleges has had can never be forgotten, and we pledge ourselves in our hearts to hand down the rich heritage to our daughters so that they, in turn, may give it to theirs.

We're the queerest kind of a family! We're not quite modern, we are certainly not old-fashioned. We are said to be conservative, but how some of the privileges we take as a matter of course would shock our prim sisters of the hoop-skirt days! Yet, after all, we're a great deal like other families. We work together, play together, have our own occasional "spats" and make up, miss each other when we are apart, and, most of all, like the Bostonians, stand ready to prove that our family is not only the oldest, but the best, in the world!

Senior Song

There's never a roadway but comes to an end,
Though happy that roadway be;
And friendship must always bring parting with friend—
Our solace is memory.
Though luck cease to smile o'er the long, dreary while,
Though the glamour of life decay—
A mem'ry we'll keep in our heartstrings sunk deep
Of a wonderful yesterday.

Oh, the soft golden haze of remembered days
Will carry us back to you,
Though we'll soon go exploring on untrodden ways,
And seeking a vision new.
Four years have gone by 'neath a calm, sunny sky
So swiftly it leaves us a-daze.
Long as sun's rays shall beam we will treasure a dream—
A dream of our yesterdays.

The Diary of a Junior

Monday: Round Table Meeting

Today we had a meeting and pledged the Table Round,
As knights did long ago when King Arthur wore the crown.
We gathered 'round the table and with hearts so brave and bold,
We pledged our love and loyalty to the green and gold.

Tuesday: Day Before Exams

Exams! Exams! Exams! We've burned the midnight oil;
We've recompensed for lazy days with nights of ceaseless toil.

Wednesday: Rotary Banquet

Freshmen, sophs, cheer up!
Perhaps some day you can
Sit at a Rotary banquet,
Conversing with a man!
With a real and living man—
For the time your very own!
And, to make it still more thrilling,
He's got a wife at home!

Thursday: Thanksgiving Day

Pumpkin pies and turkey—Thanksgiving Day is here!
Basketball and banquet—the best day in the year!
We hold the green and gold on high, and swear with courage true,
That we'll battle for it gladly till we've changed to black and blue.

Friday: Christmas

We couldn't wait! We couldn't wait!
But had to—so you see.
Such patient, wild impatience,
Crowned by such jollity!
Carols ringing and the warning (but 'twas all in vain):
"Don't lose your heads completely when you take the home-bound train."

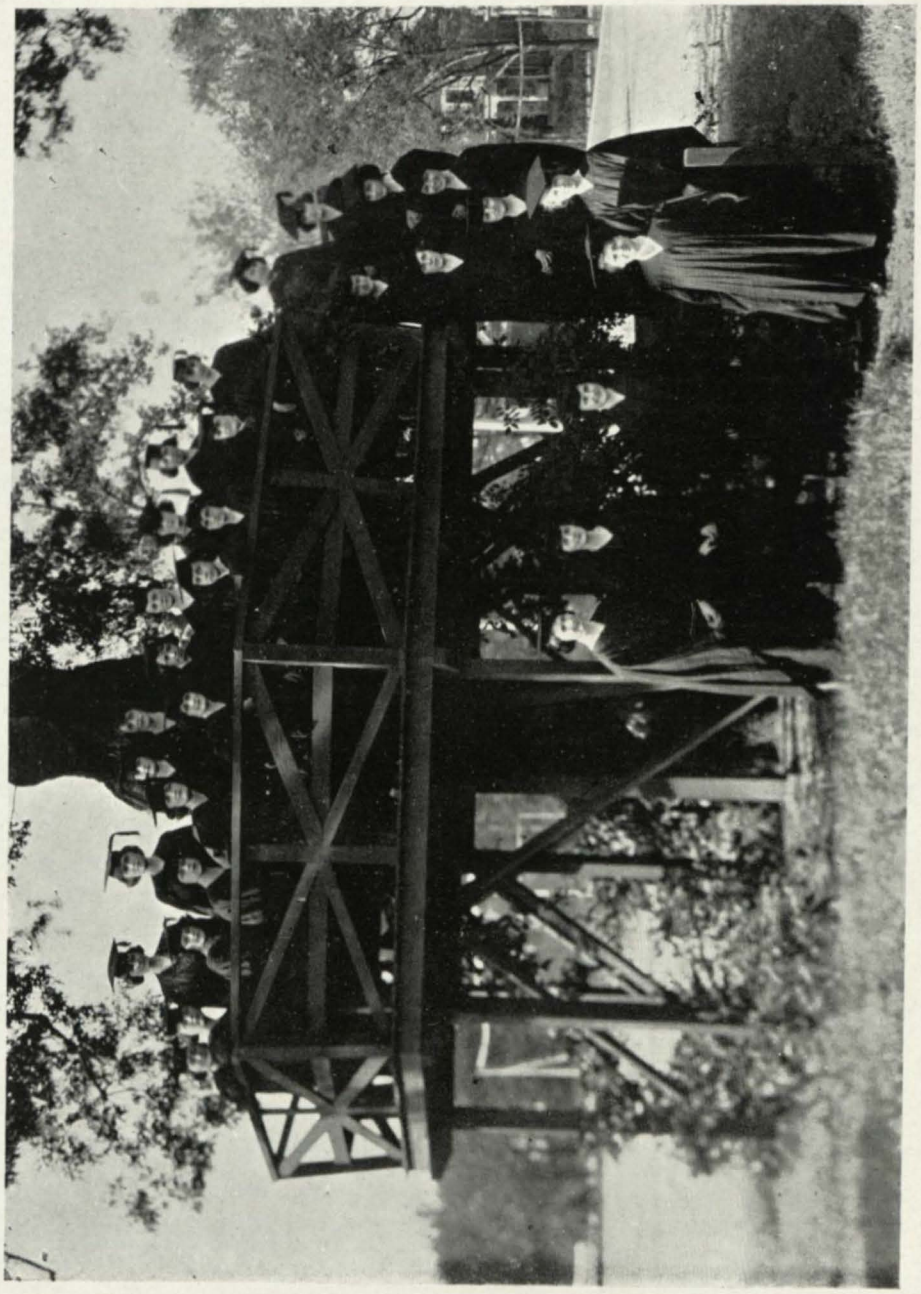

Saturday: Junior Prom

Moonlight and lantern light, pretty frocks revealing,
Palms and posies, whispered words, softest music stealing,
Each one in her heaven with her own especial star;
What joyous, happy beings we junior promers are!

Sunday: Commencement

Maytime and Sunday—the seniors are no more!
They've opened wide their futures, they've closed the college door!
And now it's 'bout the time that we take the seniors' cue—
Lo, behold! the next year's seniors bid you fond adieu!

The Sophomores

At Wesleyan there is a class,
And Tri-K is their name;
Through wisdom, wit, and loyalty
They've won their way to fame.

When first up those long steps they came
Their hue was verdant, quite;
But soon, with help of juniors dear,
They took on red and white.

This year most differently they came—
Returned with lordly tread;
To fill with awe the newly come—
To be the sophs, that freshies dread.

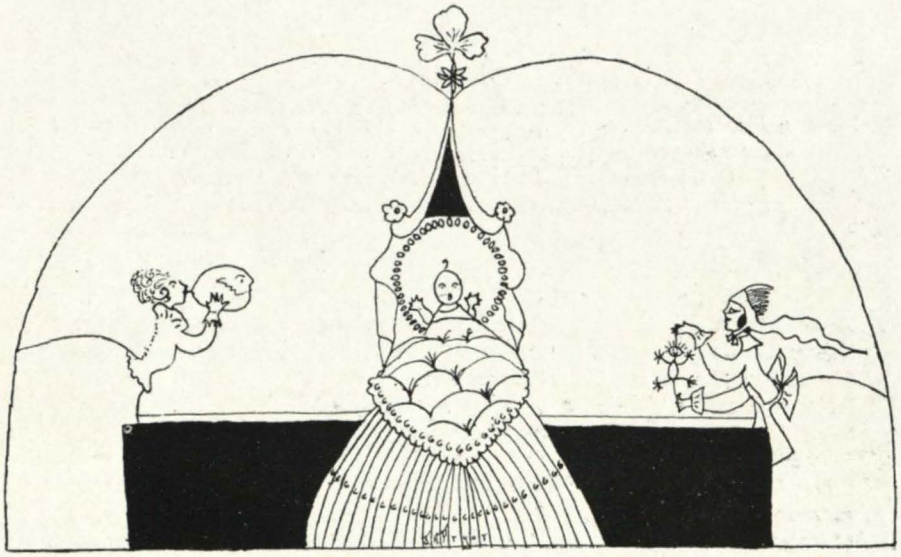

Yet when vacation time is done
(How fleet the swift days pass!)
They'll be, those girls of '25,
The friendly junior class!

So view their metamorphosis
And note these morals, Oh!
"Ugly ducklings change to swans,"
And "All is well that ends so."

The Quest of Prince Knowledge: An Allegory

FRANCES HOLLAND, '26

ONG, long ago, there was a stately old lady who lived in a castle high upon a hill. Her name was Duchess de Wesleyan, and she was the oldest and best lady in the land. She had four beautiful daughters. The oldest was Senior de Wesleyan, and the next two were called Junior and Sophomore. The youngest was Freshman, and it is because of her that this tale is written.

From her tower room, Freshman could look out and see all the valley below the castle. One day she saw Prince Pleasure approaching from the left. He rode swiftly and recklessly toward the castle, his gaily colored robes flowing behind and his red plume waving in the sunlight. Her heart fluttered!

Then Freshman's glance happened to stray to the opposite side, and behold! from the right came Prince Knowledge. His robes were subdued in color but, nevertheless, beautiful and costly. His steed was the best in the land. How stately he looked! Again Freshman's heart fluttered. She could not decide which of the knights she admired the most.

When she heard the drawbridge being lowered for the two knights to enter, she tripped down the narrow spiral stairs and into the enormous courtroom where sat her grand old mother upon a raised platform. She slipped across the marble floor to her mother's side and sank down on the little ivory stool at her feet to await the coming of the two brave knights. Presently they entered. Prince Pleasure came gayly across the great room and bowed before the duchess.

"Your grace," he said, "I have come to ask of you a great favor. If you will give me the hand of your youngest daughter in marriage, I will give her anything she desires. Dissipation will be our servant, and we will dwell in the castle of Revelry by the river of Frivolity."

When he had done speaking, across the floor came Prince Knowledge, walking with stately, dignified tread. With a low bow before the duchess, he said:

"If you will make me the honored recipient of your daughter's hand, I will give her higher ideals. Books will be our servant, and we will dwell in the castle of Wisdom by the river of Thought!"

"My daughter," said the duchess, turning to Freshman, "I will have to leave the decision with you as to which one of these knights you will wed."

"Noble mother," cried Freshman, "I cannot decide!"

Prince Knowledge interrupted her: "Prince Pleasure, I challenge you to meet me on the plain in front of the castle tomorrow in mortal combat for the hand of the beautiful Freshman!"

"At that place we will meet tomorrow," agreed Pleasure.

All the people of the valley had gathered to witness the combat. Freshman sat in the pavilion with her mother and sisters. The two princes were waiting in their shining armor, holding their lances ready for the signal. With the signal they charged on each other. A terrible clash of armor resounded through the valley, but neither one was unhorsed.

"Mother," whispered Freshman in the pavilion, "I want Prince Knowledge to win!"

"Dear daughter, never fear, for he will win. So noble a knight could never lose!"

They watched the combat with eager eyes. Again the princes charged upon each other, but neither was injured. The third time a mighty shout arose as Prince Pleasure pitched from his horse to the ground.

Prince Knowledge dismounted, and as Pleasure was being carried away defeated, approached the pavilion. Kneeling before Freshman, he said:

"My lady, great has been my fortune to win in this combat."

"Prince Knowledge," cried Freshman joyfully, "I am glad that you have won! We will be married at once, and, after we have spent three more years here with my mother, we will go out into the world to your castle of Wisdom."

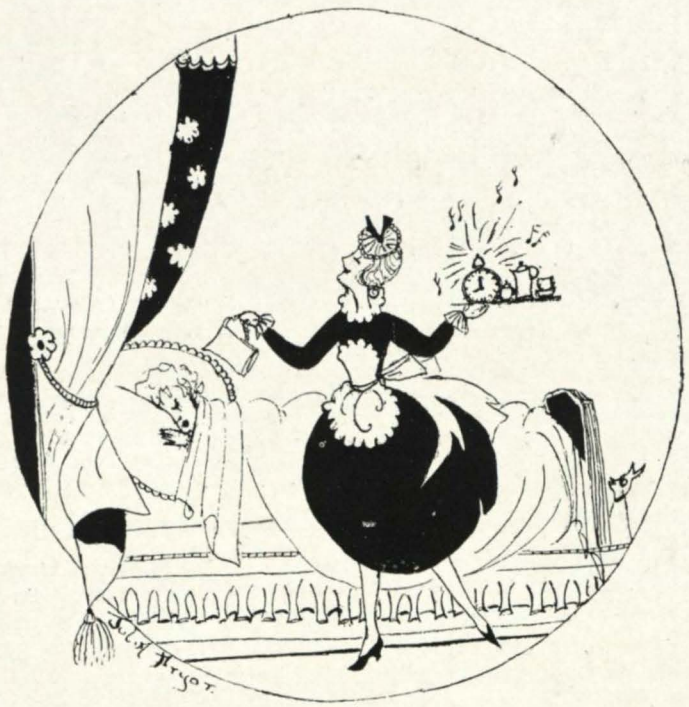

Mt. Enotah

God makes it new each afternoon,
This sunset over the valley,
With a glory that fades out all too soon
As dark drops over the valley.

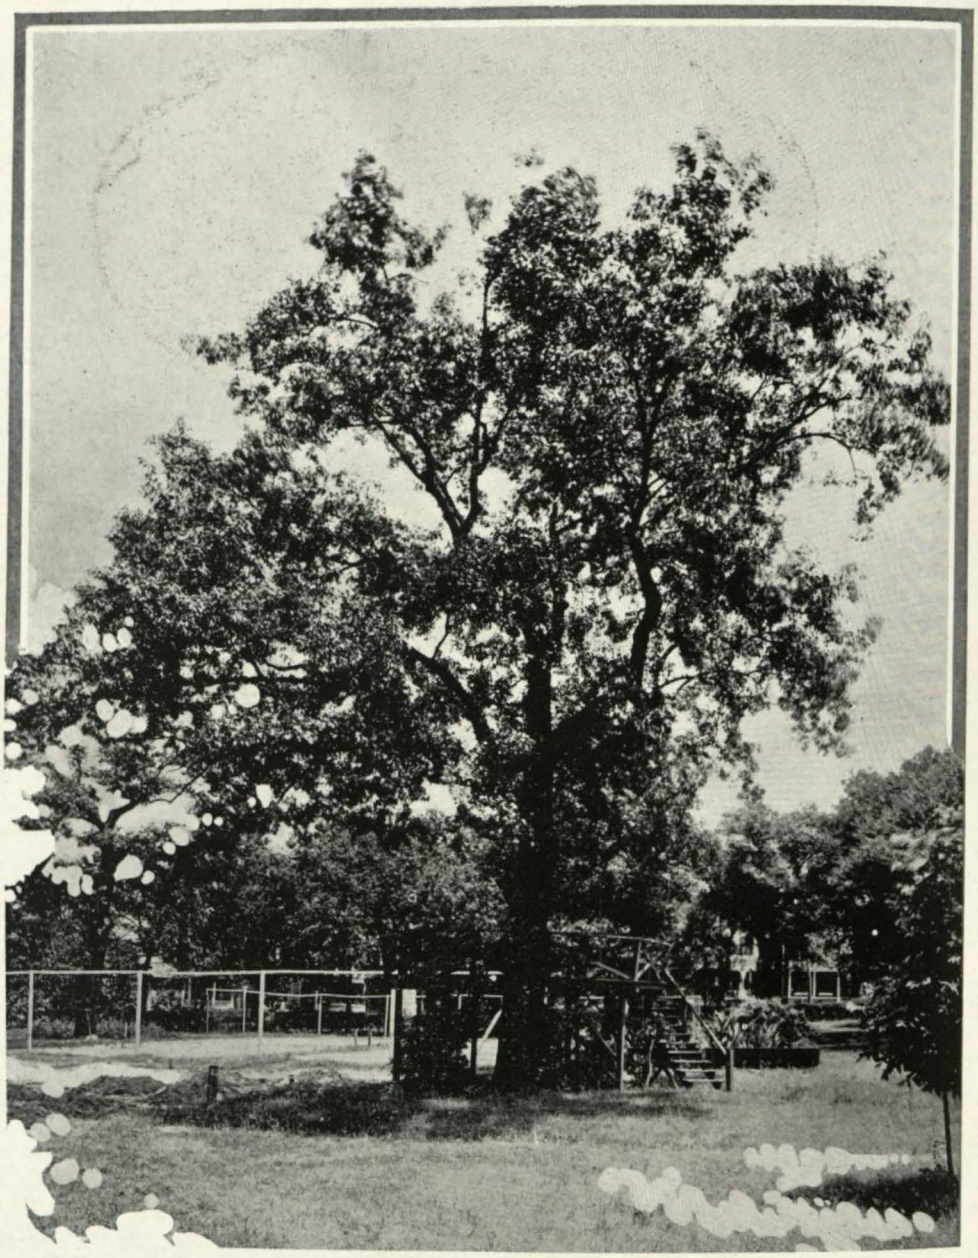

The mist creeps up to my mountain-top
And murmurs die in the valley,
But tomorrow's sunset will find me gone
Back to my place in the valley.

God make my heart as white as the mist—
My soul as quiet as the valley;
Give me to know Thy peace, Thy will,
And walk with me—in the valley!

Perfection

Diogenes his lantern lit and sought an honest man;
His quest was fruitless, though they say he searched through all the land;
Men cannot stand to thwarted be, O, damsels, there's the rub!
And cynic turned, Diogenes sought refuge in a tub.
Awhile ago at Wesleyan we started out to find
A perfect girl. Flashlight in hand, the Ever Ready kind,
Both high and low we vainly sought, but came back quite resolved
Perfection's just a myth because there's too much there involved;
Now, women are philosophers of quite the wisest brand,
And when they can't have what they want, they want just what they can.
No tub for ous! We merely chose a girl so wondrous wise;
A witty girl; a happy girl, joy shining in her eyes;
A maid Dame Fashion smiles upon; an energetic lass;
A girl who swims and rides, in short, an athlete sure and fast;
A lovely maid with golden hair, which poets love to see;
A girl quite different in her originality.
Here we present them to your view—each, in her line, a pearl,
All rolled together they would make a perfect Wesleyan girl;
But don't go looking for her or you'll surely get in Dutch;
A perfect girl? We're frank to say, there isn't any such!

THE ATHLETIC GIRL

The 1780 Girl

Celeste, this favor small I seek,
And pray do not deny me,
Pace the minuet with me,
I beg you, pass not by me!

The spinet sounds the melody,
I wait with baited breath,
My lady fair, be kind to me,
Your servant unto death!

You will? My heart is yours, Celeste!
Come, place your hand in mine,
And let me see those soft brown eyes
That thrill my soul like wine.

Why men should seek for fame and wealth,
As seek men sometimes do,
I cannot see—I'd rather dance
The minuet with you!

Posed by Miss Celeste Copelan.

The 1860 Girl

She caught up her crinoline skirts in her hand,
And ran down the stairs to me;
Why, I thought that if ever an angel wore hoops
And sniffed at a nosegay, 'twas she!
She was young, she was fair, and a sad young coquette;
My heart was laid there at her feet,
And when she passed by—I swear that it's true—
My grandfather's clock missed a beat!

Posed by Miss Marian Page Munro.

The 1880 Girl

"Oh, believe me if all those endearing young charms,"
Sang my lady of long ago,
Now her song has grown still and the echo is dead,
But I still have my lady, I know.

When the day has been long and I'm weary of life,
It seems I can hear her song yet,
And a fragrance comes to me I knew
long ago,
Like the sweetness of her mignon-
ette.

It may be a dream, but so lovely it is
That I wish it never would go!
In her youth and her beauty before
my glad eyes
Stands my lady of long ago.

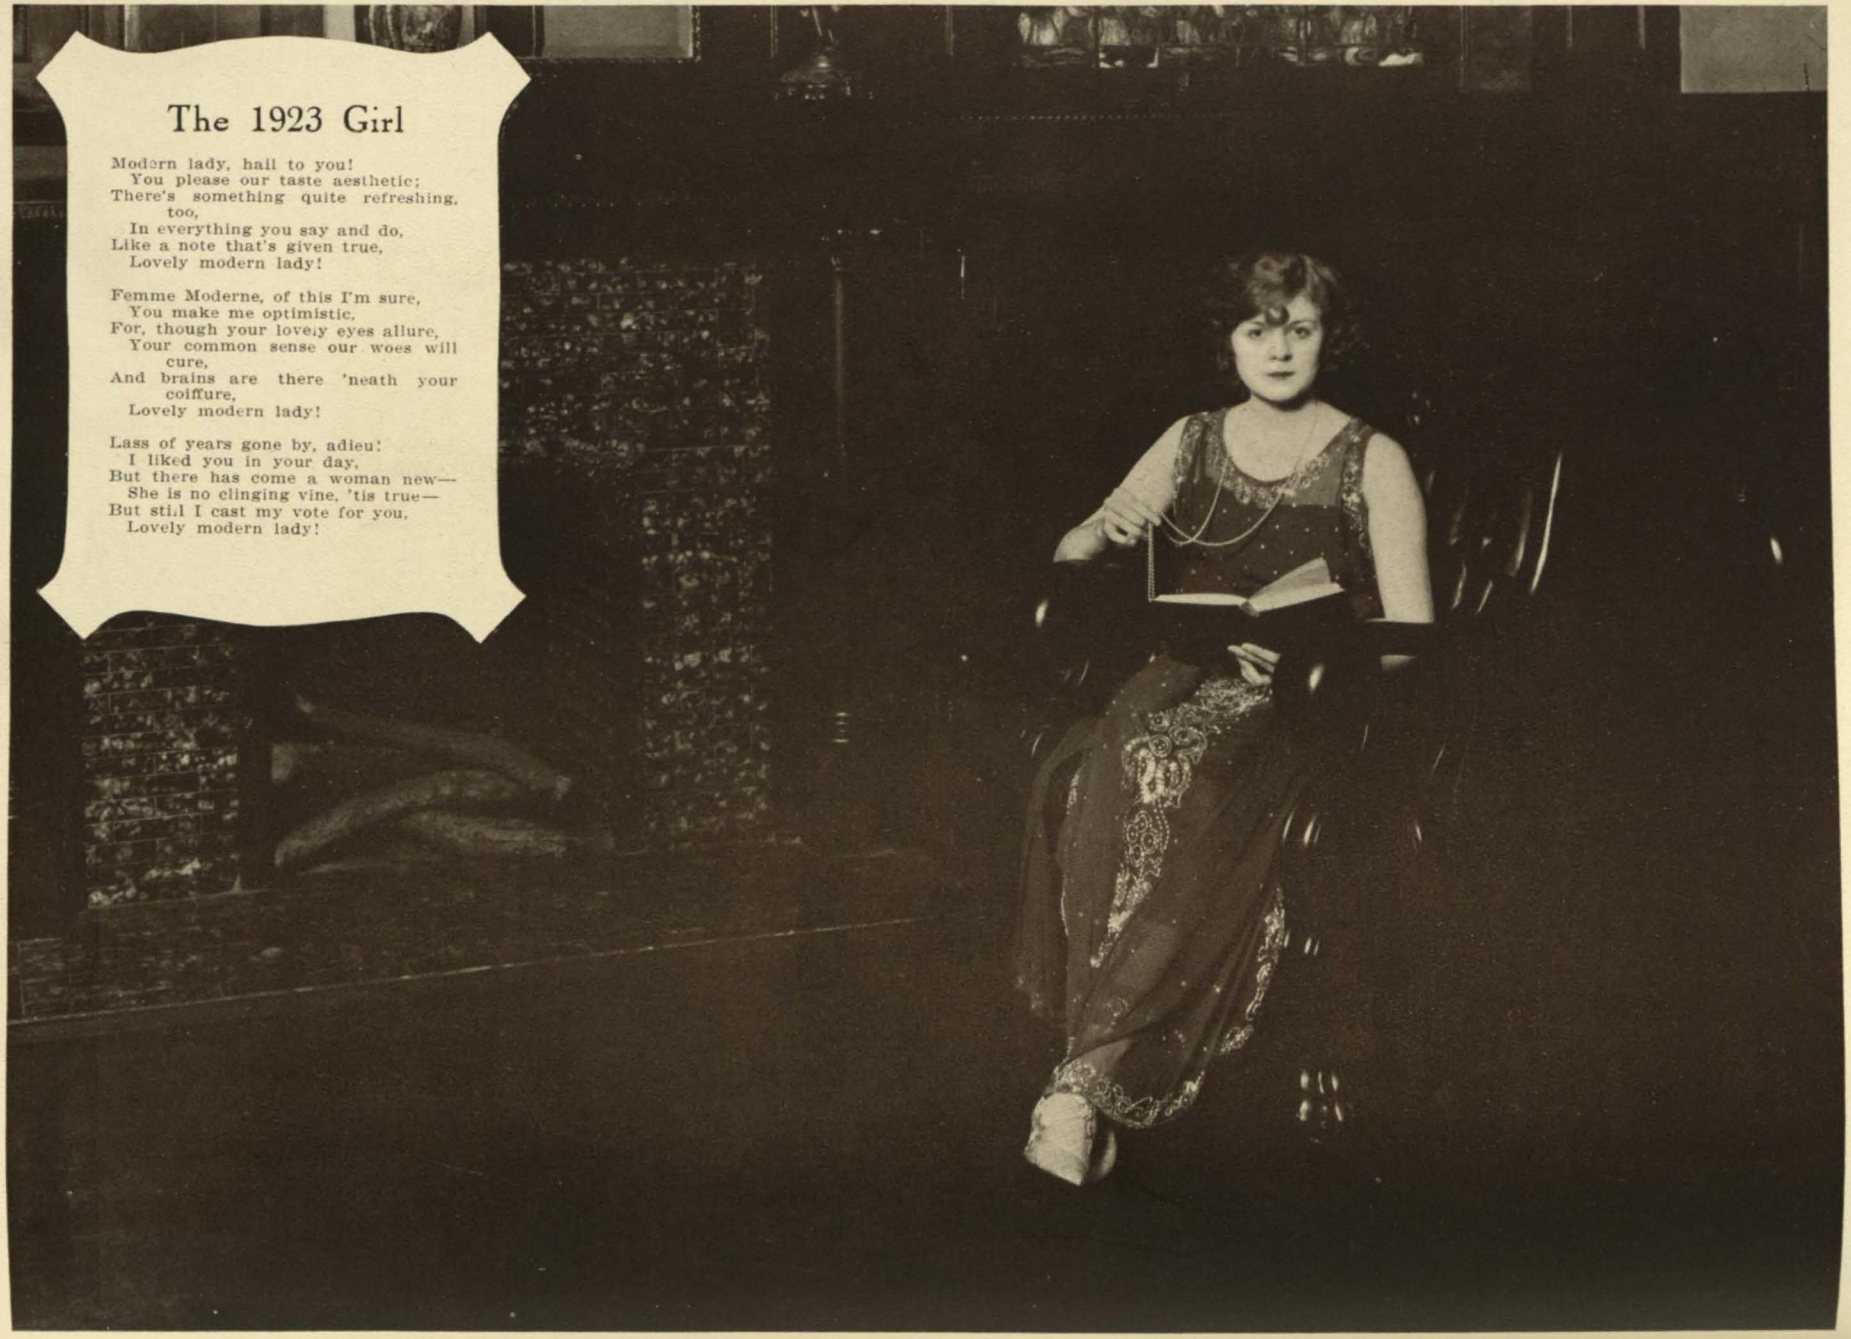

Posed by Miss Elizabeth McRae.

The 1923 Girl

Modern lady, hail to you!
You please our taste aesthetic;
There's something quite refreshing, too,
In everything you say and do,
Like a note that's given true,
Lovely modern lady!

Femme Moderne, of this I'm sure,
You make me optimistic,
For, though your lovely eyes allure,
Your common sense our woes will cure,
And brains are there 'neath your coiffure,
Lovely modern lady!

Lass of years gone by, adieu!
I liked you in your day,
But there has come a woman new—
She is no clinging vine, 'tis true—
But still I cast my vote for you,
Lovely modern lady!

Posed by Miss Mildred Churchwell.

JUNIOR-SENIOR TEA—THE SWEET SHOP, 1922

"Georgia"

If I could build a palace in my land of heart's desire
To live in through the span of countless years,
It would not be a villa on the coast of Italy,
Or a castle where the sails of treasure-laden ships appear.

I'd build my house of dreams in that fair land of sun which knows
The glories of a past well lived, a part well played,
A future which the promise of that past will so fulfill,
As when, to clear bright day, the mellow light of moon and stars doth fade.

A place of beauty is that land; her moods are myriad,
At times she seems austere with barren rugged hills,
And then a gracious land;—her snowy fields are bright with sun—
She changes now—perhaps the ghostly fingered cypress chills.

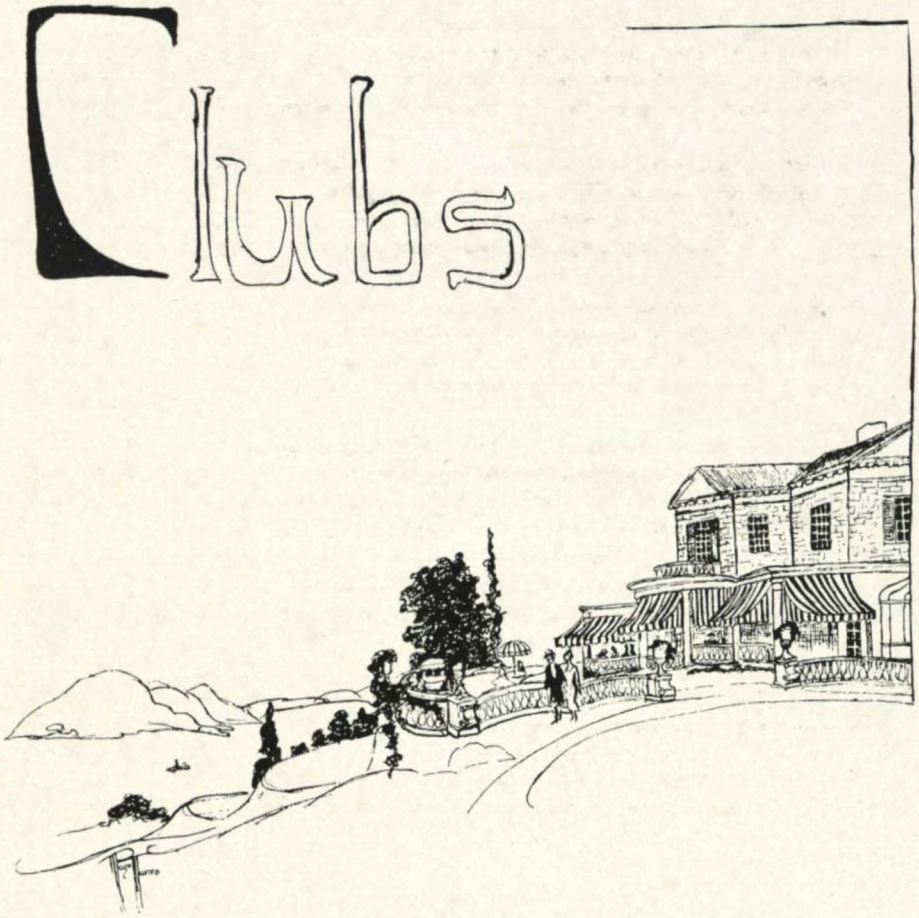

The sun that paints her rolling hills with spots of light and shade
And fills her fields at harvest time with golden grain
Has shone on every heart that's harbored there and warmed it so
That there's no place for haughtiness, for envy or disdain.

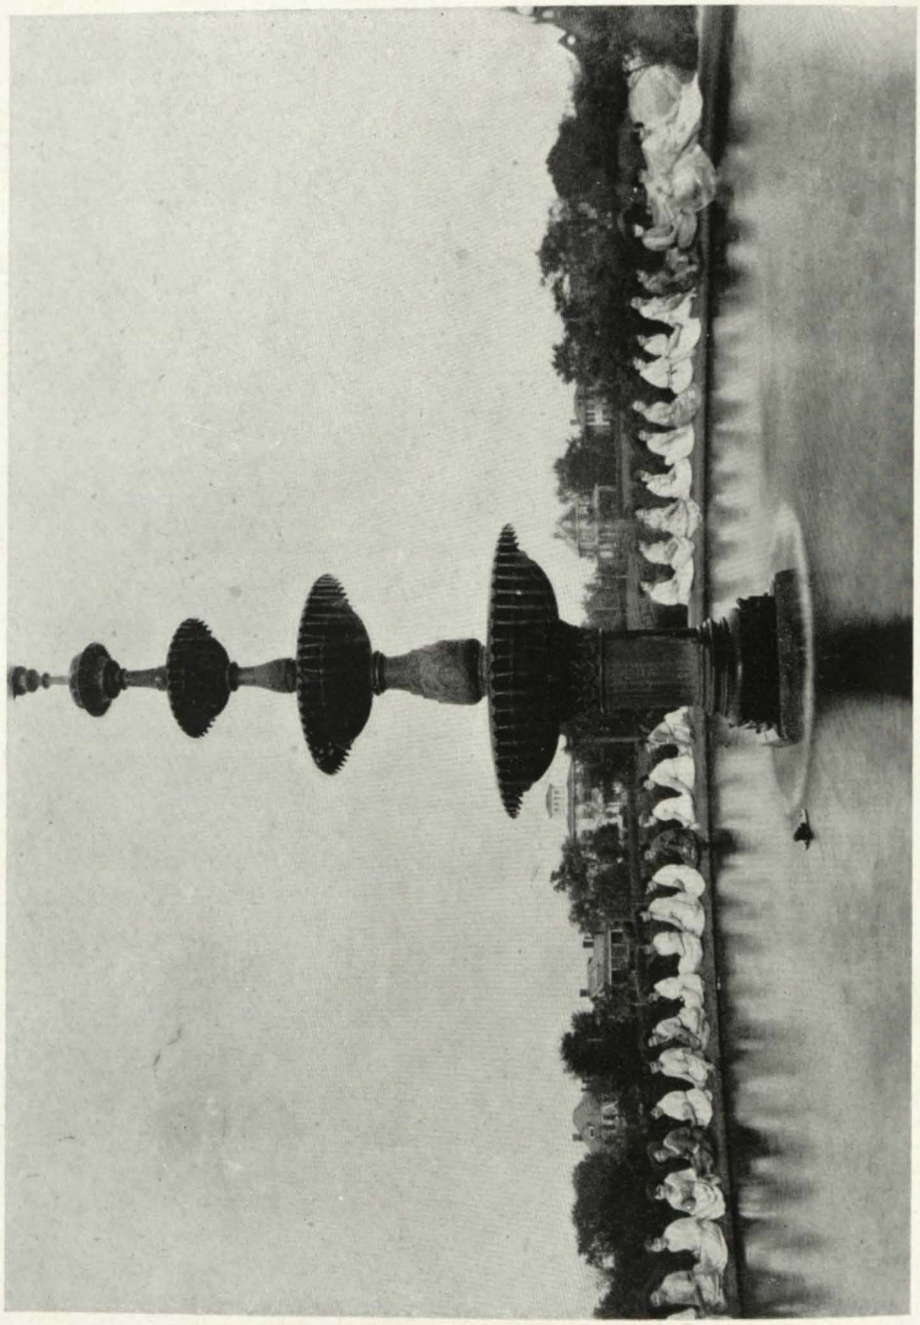

Its warmth's enkindled such a wealth of love and kindliness
That men are brothers and a "neighbor" means a friend,
And that's the reason why I'd choose this lovely land of mine
And live my days out, there, content unto the end.

If I could build a palace in my land of heart's desire
To live in through the long eternity,
'Twould be somewhere in Georgia where the cotton fields are white
And we feel that God is near us as the sun shines mellowly.

REBEKAH OLIPHANT.

ORDER OF THE GOLDEN HEART

The Golden Heart

O, the Golden Heart is a singing heart,
And the road it follows is royal;
For the golden haze of singing days
Hangs over its friendships loyal.

O, the Golden Heart is a trusting heart,
And the gleam it follows is steady;
In the puzzling maze of doubtful days
Shine brightest its clear rays ready.

But the Golden Heart is a loving heart,
And the life it follows is freest;
For the Christ Himself is the pattern-man,
And the life of love—He sees't.

Thanksgiving

Of the "red letter days" given us in a year,
Quite a number the calendars tell,
There is Christmas, and Hallowe'en, Fourth of July,
And a great many others as well—
But for that holiday that November bestows
I would give all the others away,
For there's not been discovered a single one yet
That surpasses a Thanksgiving Day!
Not ONE!
That surpasses a Thanksgiving Day!

O, the pleasure occasioned by parties and things
Is delightful as far as it goes,
And the joys of vacation and spring holidays
Fully satisfy some, I suppose—
But there's nothing in all the world to compare
With the thrill that sinks into my soul,
When my own class is splitting their lungs with their yells,
And the basketball lands in the goal!
Yo! Ho!
And the basketball lands in the goal!

Dreams

"You come to me in my dreams, my dear,
As you look in the morning light;
With your hair all in curls and your gingham dress,
And I smile in my sleep with delight.

And you come again to me in my dreams,
All bathed in the sun's soft rays,
With your organdie pink and your picture hat,
And I smile as the vision fades.

I see you again by the gleam of the stars,
So pretty, so sweet, so dear,
With your dainty slippers and filmy dress,
And I smile at the vision fair.

You come again as the clock strikes two—
You've cast me in a terrible spell;
For your hair's rolled up and there's grease on your face—
And I shatter the dream with a yell!

By One Who Can't

I hate these maidens modern,
  Who hail a dance with glee,
Who sway, and bend, and follow
  All the music hummingly.

Their bodies Grecian welcome
  A chance for rhythmic action;
In tunefulness melodious
  They find great satisfaction.

But I—ah, me! and here's the rub!—
  I hate such things æsthetic;
I count and turn and pirouette
  With awkwardness pathetic.

No mortal knows the suffering
  I undergo while dancing,
And, called by any other name,
  It grows no more entrancing.

My father is a pious man,
  With views quite ministerial;
But his ideas don't equal mine—
  I'm what's called spinisterial.

On with the dance—for those who can;
  I hate it for myself;
The sound of rhythm drives me mad, —
  For I'm no sprightly elf!

A Tragedy

"Listen, my children, and I will tell
A tale that's full of woe;
Of something that happened at Wesleyan
In the days of long ago.
In yon chapel one Sunday night
A lecturer long held forth;
"I usually bring just sixty slides,
But tonight I have eighty," he quoth.
Now, I and my companions two
Were giving a feast at eight;
So as lights grew dim and the room got dark
We left the Nile to its fate.
Bent on the theft of some mayonnaise,
We went snooping over to Main;
But, just as we started to climb the stairs,
Around the corner there came
An apparition that made us turn pale,
And changed our hearts to lead!
"Why aren't you girls at vesper tonight?"
This menacing figure said.
Now, a fib is a fib, I've always been told—
A gray one is black as the rest—
But who won't believe I'd a terrible pain
From the weight of guilt on my chest?
With a stricken face, and trembling hands,
I said, with a quivering breath:
"I have the indigestion,
And I fear untimely death!"
She looked at me with her sphinx-like eyes,
And hastened to make reply:
"The worst is yet to come, my dear,
I do not think you'll die."
She grasped me firmly by the hand,
And dragged me down the hall.
"I'll concoct a remedy
That will cure for good and all."
Just what composed that awful dose
I'd hesitate to say;
But I know that I was awful sick
When I finally got away.
Now all good tales a moral have,
And deep in my heart it hides;
Never leave a lecture, my dears,
Though you sit through a hundred slides!

* * *

"Whatsoever a man seweth, that shall he easily rip."

"My good man, you had better take the trolley car home."

"Sh' no ushe! My wife wouldn't let me—hic—keep it in th' houshe."—Siren.

Dairy Maid: "Oh, John! When the coal man dumped the coal in the cellar he got coal dust in the fresh milk."

Dairy Man: "That's all right. Separate it and serve it to the actor boarders we got. They're used to coaled cream."—Sun Dial.

In Mineralogy.

J. G.: "I had no idea this mineral had crystals until I used the lens."

Bug: "Of course not—you had nothing to help your eye, dear."

"Won't you have some more corn?" asked the hostess, and the boy passed his glass.—Emory Wheel.

* * *

"In Hong Kong is a tailor named Ah Men—the last word in tailoring, one might say."—Squib.

Bug: "How were the flora and fauna of the islands?"

Freshman: "Flora was all right."

Judge: "I must charge you for murder."

Prisoner: "All right; how much do I owe you?"

"Economic Notebooks Due Tomorrow."

Librarian (hearing clamor of large crowd waiting for the library door to be opened): "What is the meaning of this performance?"

Voice from rear: "Old Nick's behind us."

"Did you take a bath this morning?"

"No; is there one missing?"—Ghost.

The parlor was dark.

The hour, eleven-thirty.

Her father came to the top of the stairs and called.

No answer.

He came to the bottom of the stairs and called.

Again no answer.

Angrily striding to the parlor, he switched on the light.

There was no one there!—Jade.

Gillet: "Is there such a thing as eternal love?"

Perry: "Ask the man that's stuck on himself."—Princeton Tiger.

"Rastus, go in and clean out that lion's cage."

"With de lion at home? White man, don't you all see dat sign, 'Don't Feed de Animals'?"

* * *

"He tripped on the bridge at midnight
And got up with a groan;
For his coat was in the river,
And his spirits sank like stone."

—Chaparral.

Colonel: "Been livin' heah all yo' life, Sambo?"

Sambo: "Naw, suh—not yet."—Cafe Brulo.

A Buccaneer Ballad

Captain Kid was a pirate bold,
With mints of money, so I am told;
He paid no attention to riches or rank,
And when he caught you, you walked the plank!

Captain Kidd, the bold buccaneer,
Snorted when you asked him if he'd ever shown fear;
Toted a knife between his teeth—
If he pulled it out, you sent a funeral wreath!

The undertakers loved that man—
When he frowned, their business began.
Florists hung his picture 'mid orchids rare—
Grave-diggers cheered when they saw it there.

But little and loud was Madam Kidd—
Cap had to be careful 'bout what he did!
Often she waited with a rolling pin,
And coldly demanded, "Well, where have you been?"

His knees just shook and his face got white—
"Billy the Black was sick last night;
I sat up with him—I swear it's true!"
Said Madam Kidd: "Try something new!"

Oh, where was his boasted courage then?
He'd left it behind in his pirate's den.
For all the gold and jewels he hid,
I wouldn't swap places with Captain Kidd.

MERCER UNIVERSITY

MACON, GEORGIA

ON THE SAME STREET WITH WESLEYAN

To the Fair Ladies Who Have Made This Year's Veterropt a Success, Greetings:

The students of Mercer University, who have always been your warmest admirers, congratulate you upon the large enrollment this year. It is a source of no little satisfaction to us that we have more students than Wesleyan College.

We desire every one of you to become good helpmates, using your influence and your pursuasive powers in bringing next year to Mercer University the largest number of students the institution has ever known. You can do this if you try.

See to it that your brothers, your cousins, your sweethearts, and even your acquaintances go nowhere else than Mercer University. Tell them of the opportunities that await them there in —THE COLLEGE OF LIBERAL ARTS AND SCIENCES

—THE SCHOOL OF LAW
—THE SCHOOL OF THEOLOGY
—THE SCHOOL OF COMMERCE
—THE SCHOOL OF JOURNALISM
—THE SCHOOL OF EDUCATION
—THE PRE-ENGINEERING COURSE
—THE PRE-MEDICAL COURSE

Should they desire some information that you are unable to give, tell them to write us.

THE "RED ROBERTS" OF THE COLLEGE
ENGRAVING BUSINESS

RED ROBERTS PLUNGING THRU THE AUBURN LINE

¶ More than ninety universities, colleges and schools of the South favored us with their Annual printing contracts for the year 1923.

¶ This phenomenal record is the natural result of the high quality of workmanship displayed in all our publications, coupled with the very complete service rendered the Staff.

¶ From the beginning to the end we are your counselor and adviser in the financing, collecting, and editing of your book.

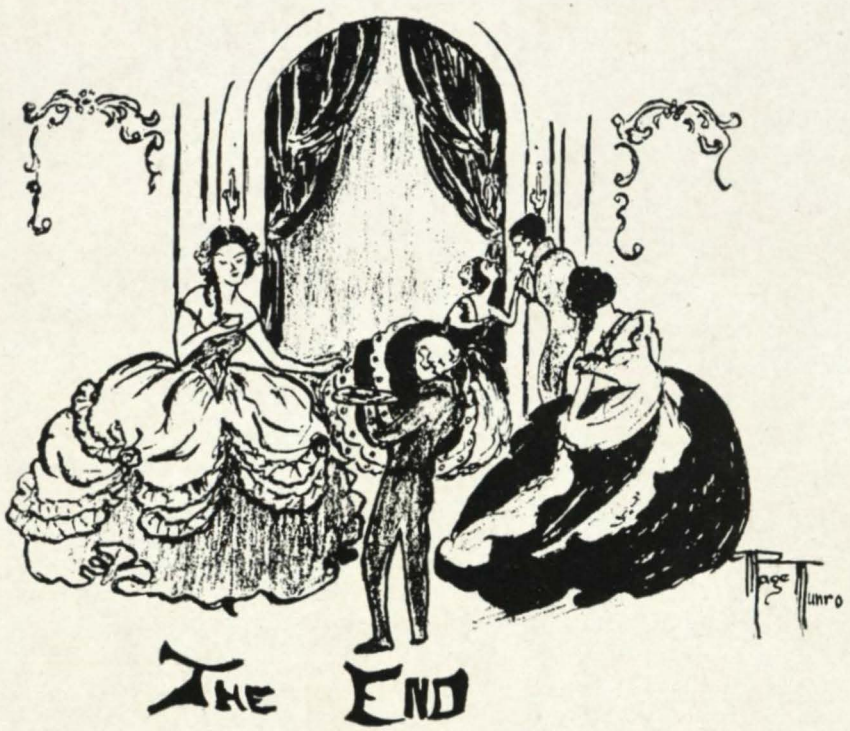

¶ Surely if "Experience is the best teacher," as an old maxim says, then our service must be supreme. Decide right now to know more about our work and service. Simply write for our proposition.

My friend, within my heart of hearts
Your name is written clear—
But, just to rest my eyes upon,
Will you please sign it here?
